NARRATIVE:

On August 22, 2023, at approximately 12:33am, a community service officer from the Burlington Police Department radioed to notify officers of an assault in City Hall Park.

When officers arrived on scene, investigation determined Nathan Washington, 44, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, had assaulted a woman. Washington refused the first officer's orders to stop and a short foot pursuit ensued. The officer caught Washington and restrained him on the ground until other officers arrived. Washington was taken into custody. While being searched, Washington began resisting again and had to be taken to the ground again. He made various threats towards officers. Washington was found to be in possession of a loaded handgun.

Washington was transported to the BPD for processing and was lodged by the court for arraignment today. Washington does not have a Vermont criminal history, but has an extensive criminal history in Pennsylvania.
