

Beginning of the survey

In 2000, the City Council passed a resolution allowing off-leash areas in City Parks as a pilot. The pilot was extended in 2002 for an additional year due to its length to get the project off the ground. The pilot included the two fenced dog parks, Waterfront and Starr Farm, plus it had non-fenced areas in other parks.

In 2011, the City requested a task force be created to review the off-leash area rules, make amendments as needed, and formalize the off-leash area rules to no longer be a pilot. At the time, the Director formed a workgroup and worked extensively for two years researching best practices across the country and meeting with Burlington residents to determine what was best for Burlington.

In 2013, the workgroup created a final report, but due to other projects' timing, the recommendations did not make it to Council to be approved and formalized. Since the completion of the report has been seven years, we are surveying residents on the proposed actions to get input before formalizing through Council action.

For purposes of this survey, we will use the term "dog park" to define a space with a fence around it for dogs to be off-leash and "off-leash area" references all areas, including fenced where dogs are allowed to be off-leash.
